QUICK TAKE Great combination of performance and entertainment features for the family

Swim platform is molded and slightly recessed in the deck, making it (and the large storage compartment within it) part of the contemporary style.

In-floor locker is big enough for skis, kneeboards or carry-on gear.

Enclosed head under the port console includes a portable toilet.

Retractable ladders fore and aft make boarding easy from either end of the boat.

Technically, yes, it's a deck boat. Practically, the 2460 Z-Trak Dual Console Fun Cruiser is unlike any model in this category.

The hull is where this new-for-2007 boat separates itself — literally and otherwise. The double-vented chines on each side of the hull give the 2460 an Ebbtide-only "Z" look near the waterline when planing. Those vents send air under the running surface, reducing drag to increase speed. It's a trademark of Ebbtide's semi-custom creations.

Fun as it is to drive, especially with the power-steering package and through-hull exhaust, the cockpit of the 2460 is a full family-entertainment platform. When running, the interior depth will swallow younger passengers in its soft upholstery. And when Dad finally gives in and settles the throttle into neutral, an anchor can be dropped off the spacious forward platform. Optional filler cushions turn the bow into a den-sized sun lounge. Behind the driver is a convenience center (sink, cooler and trash container) that lives up to its name, and under the port console is a head. There's no reason to leave the boat once you've entered. Distinctive as it is, the 2460 Z-Trak epitomizes practicality.

ALSO CONSIDER . . .

2660 DCFC Length 26' Beam 8'6"

Add two feet to the featured boat and you get more traffic space, more storage and more room for guests. Yet the added weight doesn't slow the boat, thanks to the Z-Trak technology.

2400 SS FUN CRUISER
Length 26' Beam 8'6"

This version of the Fun Cruiser includes the Super Sport package, which turns the boat into a 24-foot hybrid of performance and entertainment with checkered graphics, chromed vents and chrome-plated nameplates.
